

'AKRON' IS NOT PERFECT, NAVY OFFICIALS SAY

Giant Dirigible Is Not Up to 100 Per Cent Contract Specifications ACCEPTED HOWEVER
Ship Is Not Able to Speed As Expected

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Officials of the navy department today admitted that its new dirigible "Akron" does not measure 100 per cent to contract specifications but that these shortcomings were not serious enough to warrant its rejection by naval inspectors.

The officials flatly denied they had been "compelled" to accept the "Akron" despite its minor faults to protect the more than $5,000,000 spent for its construction. They said the airship's imperfections were due to "irregularities which occur in almost any construction," rather than to actual fault.

The chief objections are the dirigible's failure to develop the speed specified for it in the contract as well as being about 20,000 to 22,000 pounds lighter than the weight specified in the contract.

Officials of the department said they had been fully informed regarding the airship's shortcomings and had no intention of penalizing the construction company because they are not expected to materially effect the dirigible's usefulness for which it was constructed.

LAKEHURST, N. J., Oct. 22.—The navy's new queen of the air, the giant dirigible Akron, was moored to her mast at the local air station at 6:14 this morning. She had completed a night flight from Akron, Ohio, in 8 hours 25 minutes.

The Akron made the flight in leisurely fashion in 8 hours 25 minutes. The huge ship had arrived over the airport first shortly after 2 a. m. For several hours the dirigible cruised in wide circles over the station.

There were about 200 automobiles parked on and near the naval reservation, filled with sightseers as the Akron shortly before 6 o'clock nosed down to the mast. The ground crew berthed the airship in the hangar without mishap.

A light mist rose from the field, but the colorful flag ship of the navy's air fleet was plainly visible. At one time, while being moored, it dipped down to as low as 1,000 feet above the ground.

The Los Angeles was shifted from her accustomed berthing space to the north side of the big hangar, the south side had been cleared for the Akron.

Police claim the women got into an argument over some children who were fighting in the neighborhood and after hot and hotter words the course of their argument led to the gutter where they staged their exhibition.

LIMA WOMAN GETS $22,500

Sued David Davies for $75,000 For Death of Husband Caused By Truck

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 22.—A $22,500 verdict in favor of Mrs. Ruth W. Marshall, as administratrix of the estate of her husband, Lyle A. Marshall, was returned in common pleas court here today against David Davies, Columbus meat packer, as a result of a suit following Marshall's death in an automobile accident.

Marshall who was in the excavating machinery business in Columbus was killed on the highway between Columbus and Circleville on March 25, 1930, in a collision involving one of Davies' trucks.

Marshall formerly lived in Lima. He was 35 at the time of his death. Mrs. Marshall as administratrix of the estate had asked $75,000 in her suit.

The accident happened just south of the Franklin-co. line when the Davies truck was alleged to have been speeding on wet pavement and skidded into Marshall's car. Frank Davis, then sheriff, and John G. Ward, then a deputy, investigated the accident.

MOVE MADE TO REMOVE SIGNS FROM STREETS

All Street Advertising and Merchandise Would be Removed, Ordinance

READ FIRST TIME

Fruit, Other Goods Included In Ordinance.

An ordinance was read for the first time in city council Wednesday evening declaring it unlawful to have on any sidewalk in the city limits any sign or symbol for advertising purposes or for any commercial enterprise, art, profession or industry. The ordinance also states that it shall be unlawful to have a fish box, oyster crate, fruit boxes, baskets of fruit or any other receptacle for the display of any merchandise, candy machine, confectionery booth or show case.

The ordinance was instigated by Councilman W. F. Baker.

TO CLEAR STREETS

One of the reasons for requesting the elimination of all these articles on the sidewalks of the city was that unless the move was halted at this time many persons planned to have signs prepared and bill posters made to put on the streets, especially in the up-town district.

The ordinance as read to council would make any person proven a violator subject to a fine.

The measure was referred to the ordinance committee of council.

RELIEF PLAN GIVEN FAVOR

Hoover's Committee Recommends That Countries Provide List of Idle.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 22.—Announcement that President Hoover's unemployment committee had endorsed the proposal that at least eighty-five percent of the laborers be employed on the coming winter bridge building program throughout Ohio shall be selected from lists to be submitted to contractors by the various county relief committees was made today by Adjutant General Frank D. Henderson.

ARRANGEMENT MADE
This arrangement was made at Washington D. C. this week during a conference between Henderson, who is chairman of Governor George White's emergency relief committee and Fred C. Croxton, formerly of Columbus now assistant to Walter Gifford, chairman of the president's committee on unemployment.

Highway Director O. W. Merrill, who has also sanctioned the plan, said that the first letting for bids for the construction of bridges will take place Nov. 6.

It is planned to employ thousands of idle Ohio workers during the coming months in constructing 295 bridges on highways throughout the Buckeye state at an estimated total cost of $3,280,000. Federal aid funds totalling about $807,000 will be expended in the building of 103 of these bridges.

He is survived by a son, Norman H. Joseph of Youngstown, a sister, Mrs. Rachel Jenkins of Gloomster, a brother, William Joseph of Columbus, a daughter, Miss Jeanie Joseph, also of Columbus, and four grandchildren.

'Friend Of Humanity' Laid To Rest; Services Simple

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Oct. 22.—Six silent state troopers in French blue tunics and riding breeches stood as an honor guard today over a simple, newly made grave in Rosedale cemetery, Orange.

In the copper and concrete lined vault below lay the body of Thomas A. Edison, giver of light. At one side of the grave was a wreath of magnolia leaves, a last tribute to the famous inventor from his friend, the president of the United States. On the other was a wreath of orchids, lavender heather and bougainvillea.

Services at Edison's home in Glenmont were of the simplest. Mrs. Edison and Mrs. Hoover heard the service in the former's private sitting room through an amplifier. A large group of prominent men and women were present at the funeral.

Edison's funeral music was played. There was a short prayer and a final benediction by Dr. Lewis Perry, head of Phillips Exeter academy who recited a poem commemorating the passing of Edison and ending with the line: "He is not dead, such men never die."

After the services the cortege went by a round-about way to the cemetery to avoid passing through the streets of West Orange.

Edison's death, it was believed, direction of the vast enterprises he headed would probably continue in the family. How immense his holdings were probably will not become public knowledge until his will is filed for probate. The extent of his personal fortune has never been disclosed.

NATION IN DARKNESS
The entire nation was in unusual tribute to Edison's memory last night. In accordance with President Hoover's recommendation lights were turned out for one minute at 10 o'clock in New York, Broadway's glittering skyscrapers and the Statue of Liberty blinked and the private homes of the places on the streets were minute of darkness prevailed.

Throughout the nation time was turned back to the days of fifty-two years ago yesterday when Edison made his first test in a dimly lit world with the incandescent bulb.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Two special senate committees were in session today conducting hearings on proposals for far-reaching economic reform which progressive leaders will press for enactment at the December session of Congress.

While one committee, created on the initiative of Senator Wagner (D) of New York, continued its study of unemployment insurance plans, another, authorized on the motion of Senator La Follette (R) of Wisconsin, began a comprehensive inquiry into the desirability of establishing a federal agency with sufficiently broad powers to bring about a planned economy in this country.

7 HOMES ARE QUARANTINED BY HEALTH

Cases of Scarlet Fever Are Widely Scattered Work Is Difficult

HEALTHERS BUSY

County Has Several Cases, It Is Reported

With five cases of scarlet fever quarantined in this city and two homes isolated as a precaution, health officers of the city are working diligently in an effort to prevent a spread of the devastating disease.

The fact that is causing concern among officials is that the quarantines are divided in separate sections of the city. Instead of being concentrated in one section of the city as is usual the cases are scattered.

One quarantine is reported on E. Main-st., another on Pleasant-st., another on W. Water-st., one on S. Court-st., and the fifth on Half-ave. One quarantine at the Pierce home on W. Court-st., was removed Wednesday morning.

While no figures were given it is understood there are several cases in the county with two being reported in Ashville.

HEALTHERS BUSY
L. E. Miller, city health officer, and Miss Charlotte Phelps, city nurse, have been working night and day in an effort to prevent any spread, as have county officers.

ZANESVILLE, O., Oct. 22.—City Health officials here took steps today to prevent the spread of a scarlet fever epidemic which yesterday caused the closing of the McIntire grade school and the exclusion of 16 students from classes at the Theodore Roosevelt Junior High School.

The epidemic, health officials assured today, is not beyond control.

HUNT BEACHES FOR FUGITIVE

Police of Opinion Murderess Is Either Suicide or Has Fled to Mexico.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 22.—Southern California's beaches today became the focal points in the monster hunt for Winnie Ruth Judd as police sent out a call to officers of all shore communities to watch for the body of the suspected trunk murderess.

With this latest development it became increasingly probable that the pursued woman, wanted for killing Hedwig Samuelson and Agnes Lerol and shipping their bodies in baggage trunks, might have eluded the vast police network through the medium of death.

All along the southern California coastline police of beach cities dispatched patrols to search the sands on the possibility that Mrs. Judd may have drowned herself in the ocean and her body washed ashore.

ORGANIZE SEARCH
Patrols were also organized to search the mountains, the canyons and the feet of cliffs.

From Los Angeles police headquarters came the appeal to help in the investigation of the possibility that the hunted woman might have killed herself. "Keep a close watch on the beaches," said the message transmitted over the police teletype wires, in case her body comes ashore. Search the canyons and the nearby mountains.

Meanwhile, search for the woman grew in intensity and spread all over the state of California and into Arizona and Mexico. Reports of some women resembling Mrs. Judd continued to flood Los Angeles police.

tract as well as being about from 20,000 to 22,000 pounds lighter than the weight specified in the Officials of the department said they had been fully informed regarding the airship's shortcomings and had no intention of penalizing the construction company because they are not expected to materially effect the dirigible's usefulness for which it was con-

trix of the estate of her husband, Lyle A. Marshall, was returned in

READ FIRST TIME

Fruit, Other Goods Included In Ordinance

An ordinance was read for the first time in city council Wednesday evening declaring it unlawful to have on any sidewalk in the city limits any sign or symbol for advertising purposes or for any commercial enterprise, art, profession or industry. The ordinance also states that it shall be unlawful to have a fish box, oyster crate, fruit boxes, baskets of fruit or any other merchandise, candy machine, confectionery booth or show case.

The measure was instigated by Councilman W. F. Baker.

TO CLEAR STREETS
One of the reasons for requesting the elimination of all these articles on the sidewalks of the city was that unless the move was halted at this time many persons planned to have signs prepared and bill posters made to put on the streets, especially in the uptown district.

The ordinance as read to council would make any person proven

mends That Counties Provide List of Idle.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 22.—Announcement that President Hoover's unemployment committee has endorsed the proposal that at least to be employed on the coming winter bridge building program throughout Ohio shall be selected from lists to be submitted to con-

lief committees was made today
by Adjutant General Frank D.
Henderson.

ARRANGEMENT MADE
This arrangement was made at Washington D. C. this week during a conference between Henderson, who is chairman of Governor George White's emergency relief committee and Fred C. Croxton, formerly of Columbus now assistant to Walter Gifford, chairman of the president's committee on un-

Highway Director O. W. Merrell, who has also sanctioned the plan, said that the first letting for bids for the construction of bridges will take place Nov. 6.

It is planned to employ thousands of idle Ohio workers during the coming months in constructing 295 bridges on highways through-

$807,000 will be expended in the

2 BURN TO DEATH

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—Five-year-old Doris Boehm and Aubrey Lay, 44, were dead today victims of a fire which swept through a building on the near north side.

Lay, who leased the building and rented out rooms, was arrested last Sunday after he started a minor blaze in the structure while repeatedly trying to light the furnace.

Police were unable to account for the blaze, but they declared the building was a veritable fire trap.

Others seriously injured in the fire were Mrs. Mary Boehm, 29, mother of Doris, Charles Carlson, 35, and Gideon Frizen, 23.

Mrs. Edison, who so courageously attended her famous husband
during his last illness did not falter at the last rites. As the coffin was about to be lowered, she stepped to the edge of the grave, kissed the casket, then tossed a white-rosebud on it as it descended.

A spray of goldenrod shone amidst the many flower tributes at the grave. Only a short while before the burial Edison's last triumph, extraction of rubber from goldenrod in such a way as to make it of commercial value had been revealed.

Services at Edison's home in Glenmont were of the simplest.
Mrs. Edison and Mrs. Hoover heard the service in the former's private sitting room through an amplifier. A large group of prominent men and women were present at the ritual.

Edison's favorite music was played. There was a short prayer and a tribute read by Dr. Lewis Perry, head of Phillips Exeter academy, who recited a poem commemorating the passing of Edison and ending with the line:
"He is not dead—such men never die."

'Friend Of Humanity' Laid To Rest; Services Simple

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Oct. 22.
—Six silent state troopers in French blue tunics and riding breaches stood as an honor guard today over a simple, newly made grave in Rosedale cemetery, Orange.

In the copper and concrete lined vault below lay the body of Thomas A. Edison, giver of light.
At one side of the grave was a wreath of magnolia leaves tied with a green ribbon, a last tribute to the famous inventor from his friend, the president of the United States. On the other was a wreath of orchids, lavender heather and bougardia. It was from Mrs.
Hoover who had come here yesterday, as had scores of notables, to attend the funeral rites for the man whose magnificent inventions earned him the name of "friend of humanity."

Simply as he lived, the great man was buried in the still, purple haze of evening. Only the family and a group of intimate friends saw the bronze casket lowered to its final resting place.
Among these were Mrs. Hoover,
Henry Ford, Harvey Firestone,
Charles M. Schwab, and Gerard Swope.

Mrs. Edison, who so courageously attended her famous husband
during his last illness did not falter at the last rites. As the coffin was about to be lowered, she stepped to the edge of the grave,

7 HOMES ARE QUARANTINED BY HEALTH

Cases of Scarlet Fever
Are Widely Scattered
Work Is Difficult

HEALTHERS BUSY

County Has Several Cases,
It Is Reported

With five cases of scarlet fever quarantined in this city and two homes isolated as a precaution, health officers of the city are working diligently in an effort to prevent a spread of the devastating disease.

The fact that is causing concern among officials is that the quar-antines are divided in separate sections of the city. Instead of being concentrated in one section of the city as is usual the cases are scattered.

One quarantine is reported on E. Main-st., another on Pleasant-st., another on W. Water-st., one on S. Court-st., and the fifth on Half-ave. One quarantine at the Pierce home on W. Corwin-st., was removed Wednesday morning.

While no figures were given it is understood there are several cases in the county with two being reported in Ashville.

HEALTHERS BUSY
L. E. Miller, city health officer, and Miss Charlotte Phelps, city nurse, have been working night and day in an effort to prevent any spread, as have county officers.

ZANESVILLE, O., Oct. 22.—
City Health officials here took steps today to prevent the spread of a scarlet fever epidemic which yesterday caused the closing of the McIntire grade school and the exclusion of 16 students from classes at the Theodore Roosevelt Junior High School.

The epidemic, health officials assured today, is not beyond control.

HUNT BEACHES FOR FUGITIVE

Police of Opinion Murderess
Is Either Suicide or Has Fled to Mexico.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 22.—
Southern California's beaches today became the focal points in the monster hunt for Winnie Ruth Judd as police sent out a call to officers of all shore communities to watch for the body of the suspected trunk murderess.

With this latest development it became increasingly probable that the pursued woman, wanted for killing Hedwig Samuelson and Agnes Leroi and shipping their bodies in baggage trunks, might have eluded the vast police network through the medium of death.

All along the southern California coastline police of beach cities dispatched patrols to search the sands on the possibility that Mrs.
Judd may have drowned herself in the ocean and her body washed ashore.

ORGANIZE SEARCH

Patrols were also organized to search the mountains, the canyons and the feet of cliffs.

From Los Angeles police headquarters came the appeal to help in the investigation of the possibility that the hunted woman might have killed herself.

"Keep a close watch on the beaches," said the message transmitted over the police teletype wires, in case her body comes ashore. Search the canyons and the nearby mountains.

Meanwhile, search for the woman grew in intensity and spread all over the state of California and into Arizona and Mexico. Reports of lone women resembling Mrs.
Judd continued to flood Los Angeles police.

DEPOSITORS ASKED TO OBTAIN MONEY

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—For the second time in Chicago's financial history a bank today invited its depositors to withdraw their money.

"Come and get your money. We are quitting," was the burden of a circular letter sent to the 3500 depositors of the institution, the Safety State bank.

Daniel Harkin, president of the bank, explained that the officers and directors had decided to quit business voluntarily because of the decline in deposits and the lack of earnings.

"We have enough cash to pay out every cent of the depositors' money," said Harkin, "and we want them to withdraw it."

CLOSE CANTON BANK

CANTON, O., Oct. 22.—The George B. Harter bank, the largest of Canton's banking institutions, which has been in business here since 1866, today was closed and turned over to the state banking department for liquidation by a resolution of the board of directors.

Recent withdrawals following the closing of the Dime Savings bank and the American Exchange bank here, jeopardized the deposits of the Harter bank, a statement of the board of directors said.

Throughout the nation time was turned back to the days of fifty-
two years ago yesterday when Edison made his first test in a dimly
lit world with the incandescent
bulb.

With Edison's death, it was believed, direction of the vast enterprises he headed would probably continue in the family. How immense his holdings were probably will not become public knowledge until his will is filed for probate.
The extent of his personal fortune has never been disclosed.

Only recently, his associates denied a quoted remark attributed to Edison that his wealth had shrunk to practically nothing because of his philanthropies and his investments carrying on his inventions and putting them on the market.

The entire nation paid an unusual tribute to Edison's memory last night. In accordance with President Hoover's proclamation, lights were turned off for one minute at 10 o'clock. In New York, Broadway's glitter was dimmed and the Statue of Liberty darkened. In private homes, public places, on the streets, one minute of darkness prevailed.

Throughout the nation time was turned back to the days of fifty-
two years ago yesterday when Edison made his first test in a dimly
lit world with the incandescent
bulb.

The Truth About Rheumatism

The truth is that within 24 hours after you start taking the efficient prescription called Allenru, uric acid poison starts to leave your body.
Within 48 hours pain, agony, and distress are gone—you're happy again—and back on the job.
You're simply fooling yourself when you stick to makeshift pain deadeners and relievers—unless uric acid goes—rheumatism stays with you.
Allenru is positively guaranteed by Hamilton & Ryan and druggists everywhere to do just as this notice states or money back—a generous bottle for 85 cents.—Adv.

All because Fate took her to the home of the great tenor, Giovanni Martinelli, who immediately recognized her vocal gift. Free Samples At Druggists Of Two New Vick Products

Every User of Vicks VapoRub Entitled to a Free Trial of Its New Allies—Vicks Nose & Throat Drops and Vicks Medicated Cough Drops

INTRODUCES NEW IDEA

Discovery Makes Possible New Vick Plan of Better Home-Control of Colds.

TO REDUCE "COLD-TAX"

Following years of research on the problem of colds and their increasing cost, Vick Chemists announce a new discovery—Vicks Nose & Throat Drops. Based on a new idea in preventing colds, it is a perfect ally to Vicks VapoRub, the modern and better method of treating colds. Together, they make possible the new Vick Plan of Better Control of Colds in the home—and further reduction of the family "Cold-Tax" of time, money and discomfort.
Here is the plan:
1.—Before a Cold Starts.
On exposure to colds or any of the causes that ordinarily lead to colds—(crowded indoor places—stuffy, poorly ventilated rooms—sudden temperature changes—wet and cold)—that slow down the normal functioning of the nose, Nature's marvelous "first line of defense against colds"—use Vicks Drops promptly. Or, if a cold actually threatens—when you feel that first stuffy, sneezy irritation of the nasal passages—a few drops up each nostril, and many annoying colds will be avoided.

2.—When a Cold Strikes.
Use the convenient Vicks Drops during the day—anytime, any place—as often as needed for comfort and relief. At bedtime, rub Vicks VapoRub well over throat and chest and cover with warm flannel. Leave bed-clothing loose around the neck so the medicated vapors can be inhaled all night long. This Vick Plan gives you a full 24-hour treatment. If there is a cough, you will like another Vick product—Vicks Cough Drops—actually medicated with ingredients of Vicks VapoRub.
Trial Packages Free.
In order that every user of Vicks VapoRub may try the two new products now being introduced, a supply of free trial packages of each has been sent to every druggist in the United States. Go to your druggist today and ask for yours. The Truth About Rheumatism

The truth is that within 24 hours after you start taking the efficient prescription called Allenru uric acid poison starts to leave your body.

Within 48 hours pain, agony, and distress are gone—you're happy again—and back on the job.

You're simply fooling yourself when you stick to makeshift pain deadeners—and relievers—unless uric acid goes—rheumatism stays with you.

Allenru is positively guaranteed by Hamilton & Ryan and druggists everywhere to do just as this notice states or money back—a generous bottle for 85 cents.—Adv.

All because Fate took her to the home of the great tenor, Giovanni Martinelli, who immediately recognized her vocal gift. Free Samples At Druggists Of Two New Vick Products

Every User of Vicks VapoRub Entitled to a Free Trial of Its New Allies—Vicks Nose & Throat Drops and Vicks Medicated Cough Drops

INTRODUCES NEW IDEA

Discovery Makes Possible New Vick Plan of Better Home-Control of Colds.

TO REDUCE "COLD-TAX"

Following years of research on the problem of colds and their increasing cost, Vick Chemists announce a new discovery—Vicks Nose & Throat Drops. Based on a new idea in preventing colds, it is a perfect ally to Vicks VapoRub, the modern and better method of treating colds. Together, they make possible the new Vick Plan of Better Control of Colds in the home—and further reduction of the family "Cold-Tax" of time, money and discomfort.

Here is the plan:

1.—Before a Cold Starts.

On exposure to colds or any of the causes that ordinarily lead to colds—crowded indoor places—stuffy, poorly ventilated rooms—sudden temperature changes—wet and cold—that slow down the normal functioning of the nose, Nature's marvelous "first line of defense against colds"—use Vicks Drops promptly. Or, if a cold actually threatens—when you feel that first stuffy, sneezy irritation of the nasal passages—a few drops up each nostril, and many annoying colds will be avoided.

2.—When a Cold Strikes.

Use the convenient Vicks Drops during the day—anytime, any place—as often as needed for comfort and relief. At bedtime, rub Vicks VapoRub well over throat and chest and cover with warm flannel. Leave bed-clothing loose around the neck so the medicated vapors can be inhaled all night long. This Vick Plan gives you a full 24-hour treatment. (If there is a cough, you will like another Vick product—Vicks Cough Drops—actually medicated with ingredients of Vicks VapoRub.)

3.—Trial Packages Free.

In order that every user of Vicks VapoRub may try the two new products now being introduced, a supply of free trial packages of each has been sent to every druggist in the United States. Go to your druggist today and ask for yours. If, by any chance his supply is exhausted, send us the top of a Vicks VapoRub carton—or coupon from the VapoRub directions folder—and we will mail free samples direct to you, together with a folder on the new Vick Plan for Control of Colds in the home. Address: Vick Chemical Co., 1001 Milton St., Greensboro, N. C.

Home Brew, Wines Still Unlawful, Sears Warns

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 22.—State prohibition commissioner Clarence H. Sears today sharply reminded Ohio that possession of home brew and wine is still a violation of the law and that his inspectors will continue to make arrests whenever such offenses are discovered.

"This reminder is necessary," the commissioner declared, "because the idea seems to have sprung up that home brew and wine are safe from the law in that their possession will be disregarded by our inspectors."

"Possession of home brew and wine of more than one and one-half per cent alcoholic content is just as much of an offense as it ever was and we will continue to regard it as such," he said.

Although no drive against own-

"Of course we are centering our attention on the grosser forms of violation but we can't overlook beer and wine."

"It is ludicrous—the number of people who have gotten the notion that ownership of beer and wine is within the law."

"Persons call the office every week demanding to know whether our agents have a right to arrest them for having a little beer in our ice box." Of course this practice is as much illegal as ever," he said.

Sears explained that he believed

"political agitation for beer and wines was responsible for the mistaken notion of a great many Ohioans. The fact that federal officials have announced they will make arrests only on a discovery of traffic in liquor also might be responsible," Sears said.

"We regard possession, manufacture, traffic and transportation as absolute violations of the law and will apprehend violators whenever possible," Sears said.

MONROE-TWP. SCHOOL NOTES

This is the week for the six-week tests. Parents will soon have opportunity to check upon the kind of work pupils are doing. The teachers invite the co-operation of the patrons to the end that work of the year may be the best possible.

At the first meeting of the Parent-Teachers Association for the year, which was held last Thursday evening, quite an interesting program was rendered. The life and works of James Whitcomb Riley formed the subject-matter. The teachers and two of the high school pupils, Misses Vivian Smith and Margaret Southward, read choice selections from Riley's poems and sketches. Virginia Porter gave a vocal solo. Everyone present enjoyed the program, which differed slightly in type from previous ones.

Two weeks ago Monroe school had pictures taken. They are on hand now and are being purchased by the pupils.

Two new teachers are working with us this year, Miss Mary Boatman, of Hillsboro and Harold Costlow, of Duval. Both are showing evidence of proving themselves worthy additions to our corps.

All teachers here continued memberships in the Central Ohio and State Teachers' Association. According to the basketball schedule for this year, our teams will meet every high school team in the county with the exception of Walnut-twp. Our students are already looking forward to the opening of the basketball season.

Two hundred fifty-three pupils are enrolled here, sixty of whom are in the high school. Nine teachers are employed. Besides the regular academic courses, Manual training, home economics, and music are being given.

The seniors have placed orders for class pictures and invitations. They may be seen already proudly wearing their new class rings.

Eugene Bailey has been ill and unable to enroll in school this fall. His condition is reported serious. The members of his class, the sophomores, remembered him last week with a beautiful bouquet of chrysanthemums.

RING FOUND IN POTATO. SANFORD, Me. — Maybe potatoes like rings. Mrs. Julien Dubois, wife of a farmer, lost a valuable ring while washing clothes. The studs accumulated by the washing were thrown into the garden. Search failed to reveal the whereabouts of the missing ring. Two years later while helping her farmer husband in gathering potatoes the ring was found imbedded in a potato.

WASHINGTON TREE PLANTING IS EVENT OF ENTIRE NATION

With the tree-planting of various local patriotic orders and social organizations scheduled at Berger hospital Sunday afternoon, Nov. 1, the real reason for the tree planting is explained.

Ten million monuments to a great man! Ten million tributes, enduring and straight-growing, which will be as evergreen as is the memory of George Washington. In the hearts of 130,000,000 people, recording the fact that he is ever the "first in the hearts of his countrymen." These are not to be monoliths of marble, nor statues of static stone, or dun-colored copper or bronze, nor an eulogium written upon perishable parchment, but growing things, alive with a life emblematic of that living nation which the first president guided into being. The more significant will they be because the hands of the thousands of citizens will have put them in this native soil. They are to be trees, dedicated to the father of our country. Memorials stretching across the face of the continent.

The whole population will have a part in the bicentennial celebration of the birth of George Washington. It will become a second continental army, an army of tree planters, made up of young and old mobilized in every state and hamlet, and actively engaged in setting up a lasting testimonial to the one whom this country delights to honor.

For the purpose of this remarkable celebration, Calvin Coolidge, then president created the Bicentennial Commission. The American Tree Association of Washington, D. C., cooperating with this commission is directing this gigantic task of planting 10,000,000 trees, each one indicative of a nation's honor to the national hero.

A particularly fitting way of remembering the life and services of the master of Mt. Vernon. What more significant and unique method could be employed to manifest the affection which America feels for Washington?

Washington himself must have loved trees, for his diary contains repeated references to their value and care, and he chose a spot for his home where their beauty is unexcelled. Along the shaded path that leads to his final resting place, two columns of trim, straight larches stand like sentinels, his constant companions, along with those thousands of Americans who come to pay him reverence during the day light hours. He must have loved the regal beauty of a tree. In the symbolism of a tree can Washington be remembered preeminently. Deep rooted in the ground, a tree is like a man, coming up out of the earth, but lifting its branches to heaven. And as it grows in usefulness, so it grows in beauty. It may outlast the ages, it offers its shade to all alike, and its disinterested ministries succor a thirsty countryside and provide for its physical and aesthetic necessities. So a tree bespeaks the spirit of Washington. He was democratic in his principles, while he extended a brotherly hand to a new and independent people struggling for fuller freedom.

Not only will this tree planting evoke an act of commemoration, but it will supremely carry out one of the guiding principles of George Washington, namely, that of self-sufficiency in national government. This means conservation. A nation must be strong and able to take care of itself in emergencies. Thus only can entangling alliances become unnecessary. There is no greater need in the United States today, in the matter of self-strengthening, than that of trees. Washington would undoubtedly be the first to desire as men would to him, trees that will make his country a stronger and better one. There are 120,000,000 acres now existing in the United States which are suitable for forests only. The crop of timber readily dwindles, while the rate of consumption is on the increase. There have been times when men, guns and bullets were the supreme necessity. That is not so now, for the national necessity is trees and more trees. It is one thing to subscribe to the principles of Washington. It is another thing to put them into everyday practice. Strength acquired from a constantly diminishing source is not true strength nor true patriotism, but short-sightedness. The main source must be replenished—and that immediately and regularly. Constantly there is at this particular time an economic as well as symbolic reason for the planting of trees in honor of George Washington.

Each city and town, each individual, each organization will have its own problems in planting for George Washington. The town or state roadway engineer or shade tree commission should be called into consultation about road-side planting, the state forester willing to lend his talents and aid freely, is best fitted to advise the care of town forests, or of state forests.

Individuals and groups will be able to call on the commercial nurseries supplying their trees for full information.

The American Tree Association will lend to all who write for it, the "Bicentennial Tree Planting Book" giving suggestions for a program and telling how to plant.

"Plant trees for George Washington." That is the cry that is going up in all parts of the country. Plant now, or at any other suitable time before the winter of 1932, so that strong, healthy trees will be firmly rooted in the native soil when they are dedicated in the name of the Father of Our Country on February 22, 1932.

The first of the ten million leafy monuments has been erected. The first George Washington town forests, memorial roadways, and memorial trees are in existence. Every citizen in every city and hamlet—and more important, every future citizen—is hearing the plans for paying the greatest honor ever paid to America's national hero.

Home Brew, Wines Still Unlawful, Sears Warns

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 22.—State prohibition commissioner Clarence H. Sears today sharply reminded Ohio that possession of home brew and wine is still a violation of the law and that his inspectors will continue to make arrests whenever such offenses are discovered.

"This reminder is necessary," the commissioner declared, "because the idea seems to have sprung up that home brew and wine are safe from the law in that the possession will be disregarded by our inspectors."

"Possession of home brew and wine of more than one and one-half per cent alcoholic content is just as much of an offense as it ever was and we will continue to regard it as such," he said.

Although no drive against owners of home brew and wine is being planned, inspectors have been ordered to continue their customary vigilance against beer and wine and in all their raids, according to Sears.

"Of course we are centering our attention on the grosser forms of violation but we can't overlook beer and wine."

"It is ludicrous—the number of people who have gotten the notion that ownership of beer and wine is within the law."

"Persons call the office every week demanding to know whether our agents have a right to arrest them for 'having a little beer in our ice box.' Of course this practice is as much illegal as ever," he said.

Sears explained that he believed

"political agitation for beer and wines was responsible for the mistaken notion of a great many Ohioans. The fact that federal officials have announced they will make arrests only on a discovery of traffic in liquor also might be responsible," he said.

"We regard possession, manufacture, traffic and transportation as absolute violations of the law and will apprehend violators whenever possible," Sears said.

MONROE-TWP. SCHOOL NOTES

This is the week for the six-week tests. Parents will soon have opportunity to check upon the kind of work pupils are doing. The teachers invite the co-operation of the patrons to the end that work of the year may be the best possible.

At the first meeting of the Parent-Teachers Association for the year, which was held last Thursday evening, quite an interesting program was rendered. The life and works of James Whitcomb Riley formed the subject-matter used. The teachers and two of the high school pupils, Misses Vivian Smith and Margaret Southard, read choice selections from Riley's poems and sketches. Virginia Porter gave a vocal solo. Everyone present enjoyed the program, which differed slightly in type from previous ones.

Two weeks ago Monroe school had pictures taken. They are on hand now and are being purchased by the pupils.

Two new teachers are working with us this year, Miss Mary Boatman, of Hillsboro, and Harold Costlow, of Duvall. Both are showing evidence of proving themselves worthy additions to our corps.

All teachers here continued memberships in the Central Ohio and State Teachers' Association.

According to the basketball schedule for this year, our teams will meet every high school team in the county with the exception of Walnut-twp. Our students are already looking forward to the opening of the basketball season.

Two hundred fifty-three pupils are enrolled here, sixty of whom are in the high school. Nine teachers are employed. Besides the regular academic courses, Manual training, home economics, and music are being given.

The seniors have placed orders for class pictures and invitations. They may be seen already proudly wearing their new class rings.

Eugene Bailey has been ill and unable to enroll in school this fall. His condition is reported serious. The members of his class, the sophomores, remembered him last week with a beautiful bouquet of chrysanthemums.

WASHINGTON TREE PLANTING IS EVENT OF ENTIRE NATION

With the tree-planting of various local patriotic orders and social organizations scheduled at Berger hospital Sunday afternoon, Nov. 1, the real reason for the tree planting is explained.

Ten million monuments to a great man! Ten million tributes, enduring and straight-growing, which will be as evergreen as is the memory of George Washington. In the hearts of 130,000,000 people, recording the fact that he is ever the "first in the hearts of his countrymen." These are not to be monoliths of marble, nor statues of static stone, or dun-colored copper or bronze, nor an eulogium written upon perishable parchment, but growing things, alive with a life emblematical of that living nation which the first president guided into being. The more significant will they be because the hands of the thousands of citizens will have put them in this native soil. They are to be trees, dedicated to the father of our country. Veterans' Loans

VETERANS' bureau agents have been checking up on the veterans who borrowed on their adjusted compensation certificates last year and reported that little of this money was squandered.

Thirty-two per cent of the former soldiers who "touched" Uncle Sam borrowed because they had no work. Sixty-five per cent used the money for personal and family necessities. Twenty per cent invested the money. Eight per cent purchased automobiles. Only seven per cent spent their borrowings as to get no practical benefits from them.

These figures may be a little bit too favorable since it is not likely that all who touched the fund confessed their breach of confidence. AM who mispent their borrowings broke faith with the government, whose purpose was unemployment relief among the former service men. But allowing a wide margin for this the survey justifies the extension of the loan limit on the certificates.

Results of this survey should be given the widest publicity, if for no other purpose than to counteract the bad effect upon the public mind of those few flagrant cases in every community of dissipated loans. It was inevitable that the thousands of instances where the loans proved a godsend should attract no public attention while the unfavorable experiences were becoming public knowledge. Bad news did travel faster in this instance.

Country Store Holds On

THERE are 90,000 country stores in the United States doing 4 per cent of the retail trade or an annual business of two million dollars. Broaden the classification to encompass all communities of less than 10,000 inhabitants and these small centers of distribution have 45 per cent of all retail enterprises, serve 52 per cent of the country's population and do 30 per cent of the total retail business.

These are imposing figures, but only a few years ago a favorite prediction was the passing of the general store at the crossroads under the march of progress. It was said that the automobile, good roads and the rural free delivery would divert their business to the big stores and the mail order houses. Another guess that went wrong.

The country store still has a place in the rural scene. Nine chances out of 10 it still harbors the postoffice and in summer the natives move in front to observe the eventful business of supplying the motor tourist with gasoline and oil from tanks installed where the watering trough and the rail once stood.

National elections and the burning issues of the day may no longer be decided around the crackle of rural America still plays an important role in the country's mercantile and distribution system.

November

"NO warmth, no cheerfulness, no health ease," gumbled Thomas Hood: "no comfortable feel, in any member, No snore, no shine, no butterflies, no bees, November."

One has to forgive the libel for its whimsicality. For it is a libel. We grant you that this is no month for butterflies or bees, but where does the poet get the idea there is no warmth and no cheerfulness?

After one has waded through the joyous rain and to breathing fog in raincoat and rubber and has taken one's cough strip and has soaked one's feet in mustard and water in an apartment where the junior girl man has anti-updated the coming winter, who shall say there is no warmth? And think of the cheerfulness of the many just now who can hear without a quail the question: "How's your margin this morning?" These are the who have never dabbled on the market.

After all, what November is it but a moral lesson. We must sit with a growth and by any way decide that a little more cheer is to be grateful for all. And we celebrate Thanksgiving.

Swearing of towns, there never can be a good day on a Sunday. Young man who asks for a girl's hand deserves the father's frow.

Any man can figure out how generous he would be if he had a little more of money. You never hear of a man yelling for liberty if the paying taller stands in awe of him. "Crisis that puzzle you are more perplexing than others," says a writer. "What others?"

THE MYSTERY OF GERALDINE

by ANTHONY ABBOT

Copyright by Cowell, Frider, Inc. — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

CHAPTER XXXV.

FOR a moment Colt drew thoughtfully on his pipe.

"But Dougherty has muddled the waters and made them turbid," he complained. "There is still the mystery about why that crime was committed with an axe. There is still the question of who that mysterious woman was at the doctor's door."

"Do you believe in her?" I asked.

"I do. I know Dr. Maskell has been lying, but not about that. Ah, Tony, what mysteries are here. When was the girl's body buried? I wish I knew that. Why did they bother to bury it at all? I have found a witness, a passing motorist, who remembers seeing lights on the hill on the night of January 3—that probably was the night the strange burial was performed."

"He glanced around him with the lightning eye of some predatory bird."

"We have two means of attack," he continued. "One is to eliminate the suspects."

"Let me name them," I said. "There is first the doctor himself."

"Yes."

And after him Bruce, and then Armstrong—who still can't account for his movements—and even the father had a motive, as you once pointed out."

"Who else?" asked Thatcher Colt, with a tantalizing smile.

I scratched my head vainly.

All Innocent.

"Ah, Tony," said my chief, "you have left out some of the most important suspects. But no matter, whether you named them or not, they are all innocent."

"All?"

"Every last one of them—as innocent as if Geraldine Foster were living this minute."

"How can you know that?" I insisted, for it did seem to me now that there was arrogance in the manner of Thatcher Colt.

"How?" he repeated, with a chuckle. "Well, Tony, I will tell you how."

Instantly he paused to light his pipe, and then lifting his eyes, he stared at me solemnly through the plumes of violet vapor.

"Because," he disclosed, "I have been certain from the first that not only was another woman involved, but that Geraldine Foster was killed by a woman!"

As if he fully sensed the cold chill that ran through me when he divulged his terrible suspicion, Thatcher Colt gazed at me with melancholy eyes.

"The clue," he said, "lies in this."

From a drawer in his desk he removed and spread before him the embroidered pillow case which we had found over the head of Geraldine Foster.

"I believe a woman did this crime," he repeated. Thatcher Colt. "You and I and the guilty creature herself are the only persons living who know that. Tony. And I have to find that woman by means of this pillow case."

"Didn't I gather there was no laundry mark?"

Thatcher Colt nodded.

"It had never been to a laundry—it was new, but I shall find the owner without the laundry mark."

I looked at him incredulously. That seemed an utterly impossible feat.

"Come with me," he said, and leading the way, he marched into a small room, where there were about thirty detectives assembled.

On a table lay a large pair of shears. As the detectives saluted, Thatcher Colt spread out the pillow case which he carried in with him, cut it into thirty segments and gave one piece to each man.

Then in a brief speech to the stolid detectives, he recalled to them another famous case in which a pillow case had led to the final solution of an apparently baffling murder mystery. In some detail he told them of the work done by

Inspector Faurot in the slaying of Anna Aumuller, whose torso was found floating in the river. Her head was never found, but her murderer died for his crime, tracked solely by a pillow case.

Repeated Crimes.

"If our criminals plagiarize from the past," remarked Thatcher Colt, "why not our detectives?"

In both the Anna Aumuller case and the Geraldine Foster mystery, the pillow case was unusual and expensive. The slip was of fine texture and should have come from a shop that dealt in the finest quality of linens. Yet the pillow case, for all its fine quality, was a gaudy affair with rosebuds embroidered on it.

Thatcher Colt then told his thirty detectives what he wished them to do. He was talking to men distinguished not for their imagination, their education, or their intelligence. Instead, they were known, like bull-dogs, for setting their teeth into something and refusing to let go. This job to which he assigned them was a hewing-

Each night the thirty men reported to Thatcher Colt at Police Headquarters in deep dejection.

But my chief refused to be discouraged.

"If we don't find some jobber in New York who recognizes this pillow case," he declared, "we'll visit every mill in the country before I will quit."

Each manufacturer or agent when shown a sample shook his head and declared that it was not in his line. In this, which the others found so discouraging, Thatcher Colt found comfort.

"When they are able to state positively, and at once, that it is not theirs, that makes our work all the easier," he declared. "It would really look hopeless if they said they were not sure."

At the beginning, Colt was an ignoramus about pillow cases, but before he got through he knew a great deal about them. His tenacity, in view of repeated failures, seems all the more remarkable to me as I look back on it.

It was Detective Sergeant Gernsback, a stolid, reliable fellow, who finally came proudly to the Commissioner's office with "things" Gernsback had taken his piece of the pillow into the office of a manufacturers' agent who promptly identified it as part of his own line.

"Ah, yes?" he had said the detective. "I remember it very well. I have good cause to. It cost me a lot of money."

An Experiment.

He had then explained to Gernsback that these expensive pillow cases, of which the piece shown to him was undoubtedly a sample, had been sold by his house to a number of small stores scattered throughout New York City.

The pillow cases had been made up in the nature of an experiment. Despite their excellent quality, their gaudiness had made them almost unsalable. The people who could afford that quality couldn't stand for that style, and the people who liked the style invariably could not afford the quality. Thus the manufacturers were left with almost the entire output unsold on their hands. For years they had been carried in stock, because of hopes which never materialized, and finally, to prevent a total loss, had been offered at a great sacrifice to a lot of little junky stores throughout Manhattan.

Merrell Probes Road Requests

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 22.—Acting quickly on requests for division of U. S. Route 25, or the Dixie highway, between Findlay and Cincinnati, Highway Director O. W. Merrell has ordered his traffic department to investigate the feasibility of the plan, it was announced today.

A traffic survey was requested by the director to determine whether travel is heavy enough over the present route, by way of Lima, Wapakoneta, Sidney, Troy, and Dayton, to require an eastern branch of the highway.

Merrell's order was given after the Springfield city commission asked that state and federal routes between Findlay and Cincinnati through Kenton, Xenia, Bellefontaine, West Liberty, Springfield and Yellow Springs be designated as U. S. Route 25, East.

The investigation is to be conducted to determine whether the director ought to recommend the proposed split to the executive committee of the National Association of State Highway Officials, which alone is authorized to order such a change.

If Merrell finds that a division of the Dixie highway is needed at this time, he doubtless will announce his approval of the proposal to the committee, with whom, in the opinion of highway officials, it would have considerable weight.

In addition to the survey of traffic on the present road, a study will be conducted to find if sufficient per cent of the population is served without an alternate designation for the route, it was reported at the department.

No definite answer to the request can be given until next June when the executive committee will hold its next regular meeting, it was said here by the director.

U. S. Senator Simeon D. Fess of Yellow Springs and Congressman Charles Brand of Urbana have been urged by their home cities to join in the fight for the proposed division of the road.

The distance between Toledo and Cincinnati will be shortened 25 miles under the proposed eastern division, and considerable city traffic and many dangerous curves will be eliminated according to arguments sent to Merrell.

The Dixie highway between Toledo and Cincinnati "is considered to be one of the heaviest traveled north and south routes in the United States, 5,000 to 12,000 automobiles per day being a fair estimate of the traffic, which is composed largely of tourists," according to the Springfield request.

Following the receipt of the Springfield request, Chambers of Commerce at Hamilton and Middletown also demanded that they be allowed on U. S. Route 25.

If the national association orders the requested division, it will be acting against a resolution it passed at its last meeting, when it declared itself "opposed to the policy of the designation of alternating U. S. routes, carrying the same number with a designating letter."

Veterans' Loans

VETERANS bureau agents have been checking up on the veterans who borrowed on their adjusted compensation certificates last year and reported that little of this money was squandered.

Thirty-two per cent of the former soldiers who "touched" Uncle Sam borrowed because they had no work. Sixty-five per cent used the money for personal and family necessities. Twenty per cent invested the money. Eight per cent purchased automobiles. Only seven per cent spent their borrowings as to get no practical benefits from them.

These figures may be a little bit too favorable since it is not likely that all who wasted their funds confessed their breach of confidence. AN who misspent their borrowings broke faith with the government, whose purpose was unemployment relief among the former service men. But allowing a wide margin for this the survey justifies the extension of the loan limit on the certificates.

Results of this survey should be given the widest publicity, if for no other purpose than to counteract the bad effect upon the public mind of those few flagrant cases in every community of dissipated loans. It was inevitable that the thousands of instances where the loans proved a godsend should attract no public attention while the unfavorable experiences were becoming public knowledge. Bad news did travel faster in this instance.

Country Store Holds On

THERE are 90,000 country stores in the United States doing 4 per cent of the retail trade or an annual business of two million dollars. Broaden the classification to encompass all communities of less than 10,000 inhabitants and these small centers of distribution have 45 per cent of all retail enterprises, serve 52 per cent of the country's population and do 30 per cent of the total retail business.

These are imposing figures, but only a few years ago a favorite prediction was the passing of the general store at the crossroads under the march of progress. It was said that the automobile, good roads and the rural free delivery would divert their business to the big stores and the mail order houses. Another guess that went wrong.

The country store still has a place in the rural scene. Nine chances out of 10 it still harbors the postoffice and in summer the natives move in front to observe the eventful business of supplying the motor tourist with gasoline and oil from tanks installed where the watering trough and tie rail once stood.

National elections and the burning issues of the day may no longer be decided around the crackling barrel but the old general store of rural America still plays an important role in the country's mercantile and distribution system.

November

"No warmth, no cheerfulness, no health ease," gumbled Thomas Hood; "no comfortable feel in any member. No shade, no shine, no butterflies, no bees, no November."

One has to forgive the libel for its whimsicality. For it is a libel. We grant you that this is no month for butterflies or bees, but where does the poet get the idea there is no warmth and no cheerfulness?

After one has walked through the joyous rain and the heartening fog in raincoat and rubbers and has taken one's cough sirup and has soaked one's feet in mustard and water in an apartment where the janitor, good man, has anticipated the coming winter, who shall say there is no warmth? And think of the cheerfulness of the many just now who can hear without a quail the sly question, "How's your margin this morning?" These are those who never dabbled on the market.

After all, what November really is a moral lesson. We start it with a groan and by and by decide that we have some reason to be grateful after all. And so we celebrate Thanksgiving.

Speaking of tonics, there never can be any going back on sun shine.

Many a young man who asks for a girl's hand deserves the father's foot.

Any man can figure out how generous he would be if he had a little more money.

You never hear a man yelling for liberty if the paying teller stands in awe of him.

THE MYSTERY OF GERALDINE

CHAPTER XXXV.

FOR a moment Colt drew thoughtfully on his pipe. "But Dougherty has muddled the waters and made them turbid," he complained. "There is still the mystery about why that crime was committed with an axe. There is still the question of who that mysterious woman was at the doctor's door."

"Do you believe in her?" I asked. "I do. I know Dr. Maskell has been lying, but not about that. Ah, Tony, what mysteries are here. When was the girl's body buried? I wish I knew that. Why did they bother to bury it at all? I have found a witness, a passing motorist, who remembers seeing lights on the hill on the night of January 3—that probably was the night the strange burial was performed."

He glanced around him with the lightning eye of some predatory bird. "We have two means of attack," he continued. "One is to eliminate the suspects."

"Let me name them," I said. "There is first the doctor himself."

"Yes." "And after him Bruce, and then Armstrong—who still can't account for his movements—and even the father had a motive, as you once pointed out."

"Who else?" asked Thatcher Colt, with a tantalizing smile. "I scratched my head vainly."

All Innocent.

"Ah, Tony," said my chief, "you have left out some of the most important suspects. But no matter, whether you named them or not, they are all innocent."

"All?" "Every last one of them—as innocent as if Geraldine Foster were living this minute."

"How can you know that?" I inquired, for it did seem to me now that there was arrogance in the manner of Thatcher Colt.

"How?" he repeated, with a chuckle. "Well, Tony, I will tell you how."

Irritatingly he paused to light his pipe, and then lifting his eyes, he stared at me solemnly through the plumes of violet vapor. "Because," he disclosed, "I have been certain from the first that not only was another woman involved, but that Geraldine Foster was killed by a woman!"

As if he fully sensed the cold chill that ran through me when he divulged his terrible suspicion, Thatcher Colt gazed at me with melancholy eyes.

"The clue," he said, "lies in this."

From a drawer in his desk he removed and spread before him the embroidered pillow case which we had found over the head of Geraldine Foster.

"I believe a woman did this crime," repeated Thatcher Colt. "You and I and the guilty creature herself are the only persons living who know that. Tony. And I have to find that woman by means of this pillow case."

"Didn't I rather there was no laundry mark?"

Thatcher Colt nodded. "It had never been to a laundry—it was new, but I shall find the owner without the laundry mark."

I looked at him incredulously. That seemed an utterly impossible feat.

"Come with me," he said, and leading the way, he marched into a small room, where there were about thirty detectives assembled. On a table lay a large pair of shears. As the detectives saluted, Thatcher Colt spread out the pillow case which he had carried in with him, cut it into thirty segments and gave one piece to each man.

Then in a brief speech to the stolid detectives, he recalled to them another famous case in which a pillow case had led to the final solution of an apparently baffling murder mystery. In some detail he told them of the work done by

Inspector Faurot in the slaying of Anna Aumuller, whose torso was found floating in the river. Her head was never found, but her murderer died for his crime, tracked solely by a pillow case.

Repeated Crimes.

"If our criminals plagiarize from the past," remarked Thatcher Colt, "why not our detectives?"

In both the Anna Aumuller case and the Geraldine Foster mystery, the pillow case was unusual and expensive. The slip was of fine texture and should have come from a shop that dealt in the finest quality of linens. Yet the pillow case, for all its fine quality, was a gaudy affair with rosebuds embroidered on it.

Thatcher Colt then told his thirty detectives what he wished them to do. He was talking to men distinguished not for their imagination, their education, or their intelligence. Instead, they were known, like bull-dogs, for getting their teeth into something and refusing to let go. This job to which he assigned them was a hewing-

Each night the thirty men reported to Thatcher Colt at Police Headquarters in deep dejection. But my chief refused to be discouraged.

"If we don't find some jobber in New York who recognizes this pillow case," he declared, "we'll visit every mill in the country before I will quit."

Each manufacturer or agent when shown a sample shook his head and declared that it was not in his line. In this, which the others found so discouraging, Thatcher Colt found comfort.

"When they are able to state so positively, and at once, that it is not theirs, that makes our work all the easier," he declared. "It would really look hopeless if they said they were not sure."

At the beginning, Colt was an ignoramus about pillow cases, but before he got through he knew a great deal about them. His tenacity, in view of repeated failures, seems all the more remarkable to me as I look back on it. It was Detective Sergeant Gernsbach, a stolid, reliable fellow, who finally came proudly to the Com-

of-wood task, a drawing-of-water duty, but each work is vital, and it is of supreme consequence to the police detection of crime, as the results in this case showed. Not one of the detectives was told that they were working on the Geraldine Foster case. Each of them was assigned by Thatcher Colt to a section of the city in which were located the lofts and sample rooms of manufacturers and agents known to deal in bedding and bed linen. Off they went, each with his own sample.

All day long, day in and day out, for the next three days, these detectives travelled from building to building, visiting every office, questioning every maker and distributor of pillow slips, exhibiting the samples in an organized effort to trace this unmarked pillow case to its source. I will admit that it seemed like a sheer waste of man power, nor could I guess even its purpose. What could be proved, even if they did locate the wholesaler from which it came? But Thatcher Colt has a profound regard for facts. He feels that the more facts you know about anything, the nearer you are likely to come to the truth about it. On this principle, he continued his men on this most depressing chase, depressing because visit after visit yielded not the slightest result.

missioner's office with things. Gernsbach had taken his piece of the pillow into the office of a manufacturers' agent who promptly identified it as part of his own line.

"Ah, yes," he had told the detective. "I remember it very well. I have good cause to. It cost me a lot of money."

An Experiment.

He had then explained to Gernsbach that these expensive pillow cases, of which the piece shown to him was undoubtedly a sample, had been sold by his house to a number of small stores scattered throughout New York City. The pillow cases had been made up in the nature of an experiment. Despite their excellent quality, their gaudiness had made them almost unsalable. The people who could afford that quality wouldn't stand for that style, and the people who liked the style, invariably could not afford the quality. Thus the manufacturers were left with almost the entire output unsold on their hands. For years they had been carried in stock, because of hopes which never materialized, and finally, to prevent a total loss, had been offered at a great sacrifice to a lot of little junky stores throughout Manhattan.

tory adventures and consents to support his wayward nephew only on condition that he marry the girl of the uncle's choice. Haines amends the condition with the proposition that if he can prove the girl to be promiscuous he may be relieved of matrimonial bonds. The uncle agrees.

The hilarious episodes then relate to Haines' attempt to compromise the young lady in the guise of a gigolo. It is only when he discovers that she is the only woman he has ever met whose virtue is impregnable that he falls in love with her—and almost too late.

A good deal of serious acting is done to make a pleasing contrast with the more familiar tomfooleries of the Metro Goldwyn-Mayer comedy star.

AT THE GRAND

With spice enough to be naughty, sugar enough to be nice, and substance enough to be entirely satisfactory entertainment fare "Meet the Wife," an adaptation of Lynn Starling's stage play produced by Christa for Columbia had audiences at the Grand Theatre yesterday shrieking with delight.

This adventure among very nice people who find themselves suddenly placed in a very shocking situation brings together Laura LePlante, Lew Cody, Joan Marsh, Harry Myers, William Janney, Claud Allister and Edgar Norton and each one plays his role with perfect understanding and in the right comedy key.

Any member of the family of Mary Ducey, 229 N. Court-st, is invited to be a guest of The Herald to the Grand Theatre. Call at this office for ticket.

JACKSON TWP. SCHOOL NOTES

Report cards for the first six weeks' period were distributed on Wednesday. These reports carry to the parents the teacher's estimate of the type of school work being done by their child or children. If a pupil receives a low grade in any subject, it should be made a matter of immediate inquiry. Often a low grade may be attributed to lack of study, to irregularities in attendance, to too many outside engagements or to some cause which may be removed. Regularity and promptness in attendance are essential to maintenance of class standing, and your hearty cooperation is very much desired that these may be brought about.

All parents are cordially invited to visit the school, at any time.

Merrell Probes Road Requests

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 22.—Acting quickly on requests for division of U. S. Route 25, or the Dixie highway, between Findlay and Cincinnati, Highway Director O. W. Merrell has ordered his traffic department to investigate the feasibility of the plan, it was announced today.

A traffic survey was requested by the director to determine whether travel is heavy enough over the present route, by way of Lima, Wapakoneta, Sidney, Troy and Dayton, to require an eastern branch of the highway.

Merrell's order was given after the Springfield city commission asked that state and federal routes between Findlay and Cincinnati through Kenton, Xenia, Bellefontaine, West Liberty, Springfield and Yellow Springs be designated as U. S. Route 25, East.

The investigation is to be conducted to determine whether the proposed split to the executive committee of the National Association of State Highway Officials, which alone is authorized to order such a change.

If Merrell finds that a division of the Dixie highway is needed at this time, he doubtless will announce his approval of the proposal to the committee, with whom, in the opinion of highway officials, it would have considerable weight.

In addition to the survey of traffic on the present road, a study will be conducted to find if sufficient per cent of the population is served without an alternate designation for the route, it was reported at the department.

No definite answer to the request can be given until next June when the executive committee will hold its next regular meeting, it was said here by the director.

U. S. Senator Simeon D. Fess of Yellow Springs and Congressman Charles Brand of Urbana have been urged by their home cities to join in the fight for the proposed division of the road.

The distance between Toledo and Cincinnati will be shortened 35 miles over the proposed eastern division, and considerable city traffic will be eliminated according to arguments sent to Merrell.

The Dixie highway between Toledo and Cincinnati "is considered to be one of the heaviest traveled roads" and south routes in the United States, 8,000 to 12,000 automobiles per day being a fair estimate of the traffic, which is composed largely of tourists," according to the Springfield request.

Following the receipt of the Springfield request, Chambers of Commerce at Hamilton and Middletown also demanded that they be allowed on U. S. Route 25.

If the national association orders the requested division, it will be acting against a resolution it passed at its last meeting, when it declared itself "opposed to the policy of the designation of alternate U. S. routes, carrying the same number with a designating letter."

Dangerous to Neglect Even Slight Infections

Dr. Copeland, Writing of "Endocarditis," Tells the Interesting Case of a War Veteran and the Aftermath of an Infected Wound.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

FEW days ago a World War Veteran came out to my farm to talk about his compensation. It is such an interesting case I want to tell you something about it. Perhaps there may be found in it some lessons of value to many persons.

This fine man was wounded in the Summer of 1918. The injury was not particularly serious in itself, but unfortunately he was badly infected.

The soldier went back to his duties and after the Armistice was sent to the Rhine. On the way, after a forced march, he fell by the wayside, paralyzed from his waist to his feet.

Fully recovering, he finished his service and returned to private life. Last year, after hard work chopping ice from a roof in a Northern climate, he was stricken with a severe headache. In an hour's time he was found to be paralyzed on his left side, face, arm and leg. The doctors said he had a thrombosis of the brain.

The question involved is this: Is there any relationship between the three incidents—the wound with infection, the paralysis in 1918, and the latest difficulty, the paralyzed side?

Personally, I think there is a very definite relationship. This is the way I picture the case:

In July, 1918, when the infection occurred, there were turned into the blood stream numerous germs, "bacteria," as they are called. Where did they go? Many went to the heart and some of them anchored there, so to speak.

As a result of this attack upon the lining of the heart, there was set up what the doctors call "endocarditis." This big name means nothing more than inflammation of the lining membrane of the heart and of the valves of the heart. But this is bad enough, I assure you.

When this trouble exists, tiny germs, "vegetations" as they are called, are deposited on the surface of the heart valves. So long as they stay there, the victim need not worry. But the sad thing is that these are liable to become detached. Then what happens?

They float along in the current of blood until that part of the stream reaches a very narrow blood vessel somewhere in the body. It is too small to permit the passage of the embolus, the clot, the tiny vegetation—whatever you choose to call it—then it sticks in the blood vessel, stopping it up, and preventing the flow of blood to the tissues beyond. In consequence we have a "thrombosis," an obstruction of the blood vessel.

Whether this accident will prove serious, depends on the part of the body where the thrombosis occurs. If it is in the brain or spinal cord, it may be very serious. It all depends on how quickly the blood is absorbed, or how speedily it crowds through the vessel and floats off to some less important place.

Now you see why I think the three incidents in the life of the soldier are related. Following the infection with pus and bacterial formation, the heart lining became diseased. Later, a small vegetation broke off the heart and lodged in the spinal cord. Lastly, a thrombosis formed in the brain. The first paralysis passed off quickly, before permanent damage was done. The latest experience resulted in more or less permanent paralysis of the face and limbs.

One cannot afford to neglect even the slightest of infections. A sensitive heart is in danger. It pays, too, to have the heart examined after having an infectious disease, like typhoid, pneumonia, scarlet fever, or blood poisoning and even tonsillitis.

Dr. Howard Jones addressed our Parent-Teacher Association Thursday evening of last week on the subject of the primitive Indians.

His address was greatly enjoyed by a crowd numbering near 150. His discourse included such topics as the origin, the habits of life, the government, the religion, the social life, the health, and the child training of the native Americans of 1620 and earlier. Those who were unable to attend certainly missed something worth while.

We people today can get many valuable lessons from those primitive Indians especially lessons on faithful devotion to beliefs, ideals, and purpose. They were particularly firm and thorough in their training of children.

Other people who appeared on the P. T. A. program were: The Reverend Teague of Kingston, who conducted the devotional period and gave us some splendid thoughts on the proper relationship between parents and children; Miss Ruth McKenzie, who entertained with a group of pleasing piano numbers; Miss Mary A. Radcliffe, who sang a group of beautiful vocal solos; Miss Mary C. Brann accompanied Miss Radcliffe at the piano.

In the business session Mrs. Mary L. Johnson explained the membership drive contest, and Mrs. Orrin Dresbach presented the plan of collecting and repairing clothing for the needy.

Following the program there was a very pleasant social hour in the dining hall where the refreshments committee most excellently entertained the entire crowd. All who were present unanimously declare the meeting to have been a most delightful event in every way.

If you were not here, we hope you can come next time. The date of the next meeting has not yet been set, but it will be in December or January. You will be notified in due time. The program committee assures us that another delightful evening is in store for us.

The officers this year are: Mrs. Paul McGinnis, president; Mrs. Orrin Dresbach, vice-president; Mrs. Katherine McKenzie Head, secretary; Mr. Ralph Head, treasurer. Next week we hope to be able to give you the name of our various committees. Watch for them.

The grade cards for the first six weeks have gone out. Next week we shall publish our first honor roll. Watch for it and see which pupils get the highest grades. Parents are urged to examine the cards carefully and attempt to discover the cause of a low grade. Many of these causes can be corrected if the parent shows the proper interest, and we hope that a great many of them will be better next time.

LEGAL NEWS FROM THE OFFICE OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

BETTMAN BROADCASTS

"Government Glimpses" is the subject of a series of radio talks which Attorney General Gilbert Bettman is making every Saturday at 12:00 noon over Crosey station WLW at Cincinnati. General Bettman depicts the practical, everyday occurrence in the administration of Ohio's business as seen from the windows of the Attorney General's office.

TELEPHONE CASES

A saving to Warren telephone subscribers of 25c per month during the pendency of court proceedings to determine a rate was effected by Attorney General Gilbert Bettman and Assistant Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert in the Federal Court at Columbus. The gross difference as between rates fixed by the public utilities commission and rates collected under bond, subject to refund, is $4,314 per month or $51,768 per year, so even in the case should be lost, residents of Warren would be saved over $50,000.

In the Wooster telephone case the company claimed a valuation of $1,584,203, while the public utilities commission fixed a tentative valuation at $353,511 one year ago. Last month the commission announced a final valuation and final rate which reduced the cost of both business and residence service 25c per month. The company has taken the case to the federal court, where Attorney General Bettman and Assistant Attorney General Herbert agreed to a temporary injunction in the company would submit the case on the record made before the commission.

Boards of county commissioners gave authority under the statutes to compromise claims against the signers of bonds for banks in which county funds are deposited.

Attorney General Gilbert Bettman has held in an opinion to the bureau of inspection and supervision of public officers. But General Bettman further held that in the undeveloped in the bank were the result of taxes collected, which the proper settlement would become due to the state, county or other taxing districts, the county commissioners are without authority to make such compromise.

OHIO BELL CASE

On behalf of the telephone users of Ohio, Attorney General Gilbert Bettman has filed a suit in the Ohio Supreme Court against the Ohio Bell Telephone Company.

Herbert has appeared before the Ohio Supreme Court to argue the case. Bettman has argued that the company's rates are excessive and that the state should be allowed to take over the company.

RIGHT TO DISMISS STUDENT
While making his closing argument before the first district court of appeals at Hamilton in the case of Jean West Venn, the trustees of Miami University, regarding the right of a university supported by tax funds to dismiss students for failure to meet reasonable scholastic requirements, Attorney General Gilbert Bettman was interrupted by the court and told that the court were unanimously agreed that his argument was sound and told that he need not argue that point further. This statement was generally regarded as meaning that the case was won by the state.

Following the program there was a very pleasant social hour in the dining hall where the refreshments committee most excellently entertained the entire crowd. All who were present unanimously declare the meeting to have been a most delightful event in every way.

If you were not here, we hope you can come next time. The date of the next meeting has not yet been set, but it will be in December or January. You will be notified in due time. The program committee assures us that another delightful evening is in store for us.

The officers this year are: Mrs. Paul McGinnis, president; Mrs. Orrin Dresbach, vice-president; Mrs. Katherine McKenzie Head, secretary; Mr. Ralph Head, treasurer. Next week we hope to be able to give you the name of our various committees. Watch for them.

The grade cards for the first six weeks have gone out. Next week we shall publish our first honor roll. Watch for it and see which pupils get the highest grades. Parents are urged to examine the cards carefully and at least to discover the cause of all low grades. Most of these cases can be corrected if the parent can show proper interest, and we hope that a great many of them will be better next time.

Study in Childhood—Worth $3,000

A remarkable photograph made by Mrs. John F. Haller, of Middlebury, Vermont, of her youngest child, Patricia Mary Haller, is this charming picture which won first prize of $3,000 in the current kodak international $100,000 amateur photography competition. Five hundred dollars was awarded Mrs. Haller as first prize in the competition for pictures of children, and $2,500 additional for first prize for the best American amateur photograph in any classification. This and five other American-made photographs will compete at Geneva, Switzerland, in November, against 276 prize pictures from other parts of the world for still higher international awards.

LEGAL NEWS FROM THE OFFICE OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

BETTMAN BROADCASTS
"Government Glimpses" is the subject of a series of radio talks which Attorney General Gilbert Bettman is making every Saturday at 12:00 noon over Crosley station WLW at Cincinnati. General Bettman depicts the practical, everyday occurrence in the administration of Ohio's business as seen from the windows of the Attorney General's office.

TELEPHONE CASES
A saving to Warren telephone subscribers of 25c per month during the pendency of court proceedings to determine a rate was effected by Attorney General Gilbert Bettman and Assistant Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert in the Federal Court at Columbus. The gross difference as between rates fixed by the public utilities commission and rates collected under bond, subject to refund, is $4,314 per month, or $51,768 per year, so even if the case should be lost, residents of Warren would be saved over $50,000.

In the Wooster telephone case the company claimed a valuation of $1,594,293, while the public utilities commission fixed a tentative valuation at $953,511 one year ago. Last month, the commission announced a final valuation and final rate which reduced the cost of both business and residence service 25c per month. The company has taken the case to the federal court, where Attorney General Bettman and Assistant Attorney General Herbert agreed to a temporary injunction if the company would submit the case on the record made before the commission.

HAY COMPROMISE CLAIMS
Boards of county commissioners have authority under the statutes to compromise claims against the signers of bonds for banks in which county funds are deposited. Attorney General Gilbert Bettman has held in an opinion to the bureau of inspection and supervision of public officers. But General Bettman further held that if the funds deposited in the bank were the result of taxes collected, which at the proper settlement would come due to the state, county or other taxing districts, the county commissioners are without authority to make such compromise.

OHIO BELL CASE
On behalf of the telephone users of Ohio, Attorney General Gilbert Bettman with his chief counsel, Lewis F. Laylin, and assistant Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert has appeared before the public utilities commission urging the commission to reverse a ruling made by it June 19, last, which denied the state information regarding costs on equipment sold by the Western Electric Company to the Ohio Bell Telephone Company.

Attorney General's contention is that a fair valuation of the 331 telephone properties in Ohio can be arrived at without determining the actual costs of equipment sold by Western Electric to Ohio Bell. Both of these corporations are subsidiaries of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co.

BUILDING AND LOAN WRIT
Attorney General Gilbert Bettman has filed with the Ohio Supreme Court a reply brief to that filed by the Cleveland law firm of Squire, Sanders and Dempsey, of Cleveland in the Columbus Building and Loan writ of prohibition suit. General Bettman, representing the state superintendent of building and loan associations, filed this suit in the supreme court against the common pleas court of Franklin county to restrain that court from appointing a receiver on the ground that it has no jurisdiction to entertain the suit since it was not brought at the instance of the state superintendent of building and loan associations.

After the hearing before the supreme court, last September 29, the Cleveland law firm filed a brief as a friend of the court against the allowance of the writ. General

Bettman's reply brief labels his opponents' position as "ominous and fraught with danger."

General Bettman has urged the court to place a protecting arm around building and loan associations of the state to prevent their being subject to random attempts at unauthorized receiverships. If the court allows the writ sought, it will make the practice in building and loan association matters conform substantially to the practice in state and national bank matters.

RIGHT TO DISMISS STUDENT
While making his closing argument before the first district court of appeals at Hamilton in the case of Jean West Vorse, the trustees of Miami University, regarding the right of a university supported by tax funds to dismiss students for failure to meet reasonable scholastic requirements, Attorney General Gilbert Bettman was interrupted by the court and told that the court were unanimously agreed that his argument was sound and told that he need not argue that point further. This statement was generally regarded as meaning that the case was won by the state.

SEEING WHAT'S INSIDE

We want men to investigate the cut-apart model at our store of the Mosebeck Double-Arch We're Straight Shoe. DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

by Edson R. White Shawnee, Okla.

THAT the stores that advertise are prepared to be of real help to you; visit them often. They keep their stocks replenished with reasonable merchandise so you can make easy selections. To know the true value of quality goods and to derive satisfaction, you must buy from stores that advertise.

It is a good thing to know where to buy good merchandise. Read the ads; you will find the names of progressive merchants there. To keep a community prosperous, money must circulate freely; it can only circulate according to the desires of the people.

Money spent or invested in the home city circulates in the home city. If it is spent away from home it circulates in some other city and leaves the home city with no business, which means that the wheels of progress are stopped. WHEN BUYING, DON'T FORGET YOUR OWN INTERESTS; BUY ADVERTISED GOODS FROM HOME MERCHANTS. MERCHANTS WHO ADVERTISE PROTECT THEIR CUSTOMERS BY BACKING EVERYTHING THEY SELL.

This Woman Lost 64 Pounds of Fat

Mrs. H. Price of Woodside, L. I., writes: "A year ago I weighed 190 lbs. I started to take Kruschen and now I weigh 126 and never felt better in my life and what's more, I look more like 20 yrs. old than the mother of 2 children, one 19 and the other 18. Every one of my friends say it's marvelous the way I reduced."

To lose fat with speed take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning—don't miss a morning—an 85 cent bottle lasts 4 weeks—get it at Hamilton & Ryan's or any drug store in America. If not joyfully satisfied after the first bottle—money back—Adv.

EASTERN FOOTBALL IS 'ON SPOT' THIS WEEKEND, IRISH MEET PITT

Purdue and Carnegie Tech Tangle and So Do Wisconsin and Pennsylvania in Feature Intersectional Contests Saturday.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Eastern football, which for some years has been as low as a moon going over a mountain, gets a chance to do things in a big way this week. Atlantic seaboard teams are in spot Saturday where at least they seriously threaten some of the big Western eleven.

Notre Dame is coming to Pittsburgh to play Jock Sutherland's Panthers. Purdue tangles with Carnegie Tech and Wisconsin invades Philadelphia to try out Pennsylvania. Marquette of Milwaukee will play Boston College in Back Bay and Drake of Iowa will be in New York to shake hands with the Fordham Rams. Texas comes north to face Eddie Casey's great Harvard machine.

TWO BIG TILTS

The Notre Dame-Pittsburgh and Harvard-Texas battles stack up as the two big international fights of Saturday and only an even break for the east appears likely in the two classics.

Pittsburgh is given only an outside chance to win from the Irish while Harvard is rated considerably superior to the southern invaders.

Last season the 27 to 0 beating given Penn by Wisconsin resulted in a complete revamping of the football system at Philadelphia. Traupner, Penn's quarter, is crippled.

There Was a King...

AN Ancient King, long, long ago
Five thousand years, well, I don't just know,
But at any rate, this King was just
The he wore a frown and a sour old crust
And to disobey was to lose your head
Or a month in the dungeon on nothing but bread.
But somehow or rather they usually found
That he was right when results came round.

NOW the King, one day, gave an order queer
To three servants that chanced to be standing near
That they should dip from the royal pool
And fill a basket,—now any fool
Knew that such a thing they couldn't do
For the water of course would run right thru.
Now did they growl and refuse to work,
Don't make me laugh, they couldn't shrink.

THEY started to work at the break of day
But just as they thought, it didn't pay.
The water ran thru like it was a sieve
But they worked right on for they liked to live.
They began to cheer up as the water got low
When they emptied the pool surely they could go
To their hard-earned rest—so tired were they,
And who wouldn't have been, they had worked all day.

NOW they scraped the bottom with every pull
When the bucket came up it wouldn't be full.
But they worked the harder and sang with glee,
The end was near that was plain to see.
Now it chanced that as one of the weary men Emptied his pail as all day he had been
He spied an object both round and bright
He couldn't make out what it might be.
So he picked it up the better to see
And there in his hand was the royal ring.
It was worth a fortune, had been lost by the King
No doubt as he swam in the royal pool
So of course his place was not that of a fool.

THERE'S a moral here even for football men.
Go tackle that dummy, practice blocking again.
The coach knows the game, and he's out to win,
To lay down in practice is surely a sin.
Go in there and work, he knows where he's at.
He's telling you right, you can bet your old hat.
Just to practice and practice I know soon gets old
But practice in football makes men strong and bold.
And if you would star in Marysville's game
Try to be a wild tiger not a house cat so tame,
And if you have worked, can't work any more,
You may find the ring—meaning touchdowns galore.
So here's to you boys, here's the rooting to win.
And here's to your coach, why don't you begin
To hand him a victory instead of defeat,
It will make you feel good, for victory's sweet.

TURF TOLL HEAVY IN PAST TWO YEARS

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Death has levied a heavy toll upon prominent figures of the American turf, for the past two years. James G. Rowe, son of the late Jimmy Rowe, yesterday was stricken fatally with a heart attack at Baltimore.

Other notables to answer the last call within that period were: George Long, Kentucky breeder; H. D. (Curley) Brown, breeder and race track builder; Samuel Ross, Washington owner and breeder; A. R. Lawson, New York owner and breeder; Mrs. A. R. Lawson, owner and breeder; Harry Payne Whitney, owner and breeder and a member and steward of the jockey club; Gifford A. Cochran, owner, breeder and jockey club member; E. H. (Snapper) Garrison, former jockey, an official at the time of his death; George Doll, mutual manager at Baltimore, and the former jockey, Clarence Kummer and Harry Griffin.

SUN BEAU LEAVES TRACK LAST TIME

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 22.—Sun Beau, world's leading money winner, has run his last race and is being "unwound" here by Trainer Jack Whyte in preparation for the six-year-old horse's retirement to the Willis Sharpe Kilmer breeding farm. The retirement of Sun Beau at this time means he will not be a starter in any of the Maryland autumn stakes to which he is eligible.

The veteran cup performer's retirement also means his owner annexes another record. This achievement comes through the dual earnings of Exterminator and Sun Beau. Between the two thoroughbreds, the former acquired by purchase before the running of the Kentucky Derby of 1918 and the latter a home-bred, stake and purse earnings totalling $629,340 were placed to the credit of Kilmer.

No two other thoroughbreds have jointly won a sum as great for a single owner on the American turf.

Last Night's Fights

Johnny Pompey, Jersey City featherweight, defeated Harry Oberman, New York, (6).

At Baltimore—Johnny Lucas, Camden, N. Y., lightweight, defeated Six Lampe, Paterson, N. J., (10).

At Akron, O.—Gorilla Jones, Akron middleweight, knocked out Johnny Roberts, Huntington, W. Va., (3).

BEHIND the SCENE In HOLLYWOOD

By HARRISON CARROLL
HOLLYWOOD, Cal. — More than 4,000 people, thirsting for adventure, have written in, applying for a berth in Douglas Fairbanks' air-trip to South America. The avalanche of letters continues at such a pace that Doug now is sending out form cards with this inscription:

"I greatly appreciate your interest in offering to accompany me on my forthcoming expedition to South America.

"Unless something unforeseen occurs my expedition will comprise two planes, each carrying six persons. The full personnel, however, has already been arranged.

"The announcement of the trip has brought me thousands of letters similar to yours. It is for that reason I am compelled to take this manner of thanking you, much as I would prefer to by personal letter."

Some of the country's foremost aviators have signified their wish to join the party. Other applicants include interpreters, several taxidermists, numerous cameramen and the chef of a well-known St. Louis hotel. Oddly enough, very few kids have written in.

Doug tells me a representative of the Smithsonian Institution now is on his way out here to confer with him.

The starting date of the expedition still is undetermined. Victor Fleming, who was to have been a member, has commenced a picture.

Captains Penn

CAPT. PAUL RIBLETT.

If Doug waits for him, he will not leave until after the first of the year. There is some talk, however, of Howard Hawks going along instead.

In the meanwhile, Doug is likely to make a quick business trip to New York.

MAYBE IT'S JUST AS WELL

Joe E. Brown is beefing because a New York physician charged him $25 for a consultation. It develops that all he did was to open his mouth and say "Ah."

"And I didn't give him everything," says Joe resentfully.

GOSSIPING AGAIN

Dorothy Burgess' $10,000 jewels have been returned to her Malibu home, from which they mysteriously disappeared during a party. They were discovered under an ornament in the living room.

Who is the collegiate youth with whom Betty Bronson rides about town these days in a small car of well-known make? ... Maurice Chevalier's wife, Yvonne Vallee, is sailing from Paris en route to Hollywood. She remained in France for a slight operation.

Jack Oakie has abandoned these about-town sweat shirts. Ma Oakie finally rebelled at last month's $30 cleaning bill.

"No One Man" again is on the shelf at Paramount. ... Going to a preview the other night, Director W. S. Van Dyke had a collision with a freight train. He got out without a scratch, but oh, the car ... Leon Wavoff, stage actor, recently signed by Universal, is making Daily airplane trips to and from San Francisco for screen tests. He is in the cast of "Precedent" up North.

HOLLYWOOD AFTER DARK

People you might have seen if you had been with me in the Roosevelt Hotel's Blossom Room on "Celebrity Night":

Johnny Weissmuller, the swimming star who may don grease paint to play Tarzan ... Bobbie Arnet, his missus, whom you also might have heard sing "Life is Just a Bowl of Cherries" ... Helen Twelvetrees and her husband, tete-a-tete in a quiet corner ... John Boles dancing every dance and—the gay dog—each time with a different partner ... Laura La Plante, wearing glasses and nonchalant about it ... Georgia Coleman, swimming star ... Herman Brix, the shot-put champion ... Bert Lahr, star of "Flying High" ... Lew Cody, staggering again ... and Frank Way (alone worth the price of admission).

You also might have danced to some very smooth music by Hal Grayson's orchestra.

SOUTH SEAS AGAIN

Another film expedition to the South Seas is forecast with Universal's purchase of "The Pearl Diver" from Victor Berse and Henry Wishanlier. Carl Laemmle, Jr., is said to be making plans to photograph the picture in the original settings. It's still guessing to name the cast, but, from what I hear, Lew Ayres is the favored actor for the lead.

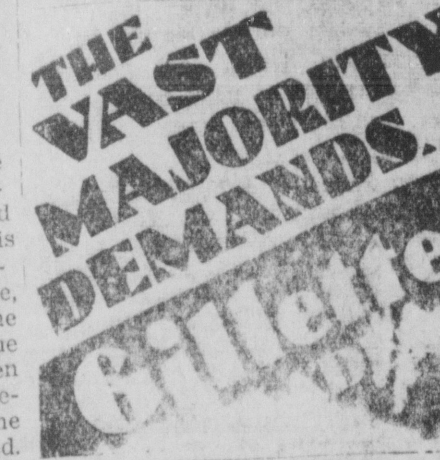

DID YOU KNOW

That Kay Francis used to be a stenographer in the East?

TAIL STORY WAS TRUE

LANDER, Wyo.—Here's one the game warden believed. Guy Bacchus of Lander shot a 250-pound deer with a shotgun, which is against Wyoming game laws. Bacchus said he was hunting grouse, missed, and hit the deer, which he did not see. An instructor in the Lander High School and a citizen of good repute, game officials decided Bacchus was telling the truth. The grouse was unharmed.

DAKOTA COWBOY LEADS BELVIDERE, S. D. — Earl Thode, local broncho rider, is in line for designation as 1931 world's champion cowboy. Fred S. Caraga, of Salinas, Calif., secretary of the Rodeo Association of America, announces that Thode has a total of 3,200 points in the grand championship contest. His nearest competitor is Johnnie Schneider, Livermore, Calif., who has 3,175 points. Thode has been a headliner in broncho riding contests for ten years. He has appeared in London, in New York, and in a majority of the leading contests in the West. Thode won the broncho riding contest at the Cheyenne, Wyo., frontier days celebration this year. The only major competition remaining on the 1931 schedule is the Los Angeles livestock show Nov. 29 to Dec. 6.

WASHINGTON—Senator Norris and Mr. Wickersham may be seen any day grazing peacefully together on a well kept Virginia lawn overlooking the broad Potomac.

They are pet lambs presented to Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Wickersham by friends for their Virginia estate, Notre Nid. (Our Nest) located near historic Arlington.

Smiling Miss. Eliane Marka Jourde, 19-year-old student from the Latin Quarter, who has been selected as "Miss Paris, 1932" to represent her country in several national and international gatherings of pulchritude. So hotly contested was the election that it took the judges more than nine hours to come to a decision.

books is the respair of Mrs. Gore. His home here is piled high with them, and there are thousands stored away in the basement of the Capitol.

Wherever, in his travels, he comes to a new city, the Senator immediately makes inquiries about interesting book shops. He then browses about them for hours searching for desirable buys. He makes all purchases by his sense of touch.

Senator Gore is not the only blind man in the United States Senate. Senator Thomas Schall, (R) of Minnesota, starts his second term at the December session. Like his Democratic colleague Senator Schall is also a book-lover. He covers a wide range of reading through the aid of his wife who reads aloud to him.

For days Senate office building employees were mystified. Each morning they saw Vice President Charles Curtis descend from his vice presidential limousine arrayed in formal day clothes, high stiff collar, two buttoned morning trousers, striped trousers. With the Capital still in summer attire it was very much a mystery. No conference of official function was in progress. Finally they appealed to a newspaperman to uncover the explanation for the unusual attire.

"Going somewhere," the reporter inquired of the Vice President the next morning.

"Oh, no," Mr. Curtis explained with a touch of pride. "Just posing for my portrait. A famous German artist is painting me."

A play entitled "Mrs. Stubbs Book Agent" was one of the main features of the program. The characters were cleverly portrayed by J. M. Westenhaver as David Stubbs, who was "not so stupid as he looked"; Elvira Stubbs, his wife, who "had a mind of her own" was taken by Ruth DeLong. The other characters were Pelex C. Gelep, the book agent, Carl Brown; Deacon Wheezy, who had "matrimonial intentions" Thomas Heifner; and Miss Amelia Marvonne, an old maid, Helen Bolender.

Most of us are firmly convinced that we could make a success of life if we only had this "Life."
